Congress: Finding Directory Information on Members and Committees

Summary

This guide describes selected printed and electronic reference sources that provide directory information about current Members of Congress and congressional committees. The electronic reference sources include CD-ROMs and Web sites. Among the resources listed are the Congressional Directory, the Almanac of American Politics, Tell It to Washington, C-SPAN Congress Guide, and Project Vote Smart.

These resources may contain any or all of the following types of directory information for Members of the House and Senate: addresses, telephone and fax numbers, e-mail addresses, Web addresses, committee and subcommittee assignments, photographs, biographical information, and names of key staff. An appendix indexes each category and lists which sources include that type of directory information. This report will be updated for each Congress.

Congress: Finding Directory Information on Members and Committees

Introduction

This selected list of printed and electronic reference sources was compiled to help congressional staff members and others find directory information about Members of Congress and congressional committees. Descriptions of sources focus on Member and committee directory information, but many of these resources contain additional details that are outside the scope of this report. The prices listed are current at the time of publication but are subject to change. In addition, shipping charges or bulk discounts may apply.

After a new Congress is elected, lists of Members' room and telephone numbers are generally available 1 or 2 months after the election, and lists of committee and subcommittee assignments are usually available 2 or 3 months after the Congress convenes, in January of odd-numbered years. Until then, comprehensive lists of such information are usually unavailable. As committee and subcommittee assignments are made public, journals that regularly cover Congress—such as the CQ Weekly, CQ Monitor, National Journal, Roll Call, and The Hill—publish the information piecemeal. When Congress is in session, the Congressional Record prints lists of Members' room and telephone numbers and committee lists once the information is available. Copies of many of these publications are available to congressional staff in the Congressional Research Service (CRS) reading room and research centers and to constituents at large public and research libraries.

Official lists of Members and their committee assignments are printed by the Clerk of the House and the Secretary of the Senate for their respective chambers when the information is complete, if only in preliminary form. They are updated periodically as changes occur. Members of Congress and the public may obtain copies of these lists by writing or calling:

Clerk of the House, U.S. House of Representatives, Legislative Resource Center, B106 Cannon House Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20515-6612, (202) 226-5200—for House lists
(These lists are also available online through the Clerk of the House Web site. See Internet Resources, below.)

Secretary of the Senate, U.S. Senate, Office of Public Records, 232 Hart Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20510-7116 (202) 224-0322—for Senate lists

Printed Publications

Many of the resources described below are available in libraries and bookstores, and all may be purchased directly from the publisher. Most of the biennial resources are published several months after a new Congress convenes. These resources may also be available to congressional staff in the CRS reading room and research centers.

Constituents who belong to professional or trade associations, unions, or other groups that have an interest in Congress may want to see if their group provides a printed congressional directory. These directories are often low-cost or free.

Internet Sources

Internet sources may provide more up-to-date information than printed or CD-ROM sources, and Internet information is generally free. However, the Internet addresses listed below sometimes change, and no forwarding address may be available. In addition, links within an Internet site may change name or address. Except where otherwise noted, the Internet sites described below are free of charge at the time of publication, but this may also change without warning.

Most of the Web sites listed under “Government Sources” can also be accessed through the “Legislative Branch Internet Sources” page on the Library of Congress THOMAS Web site at [<http://thomas.loc.gov/home/legbranch/legbranch.html>].

Congressional staff may also use the “Legislative Reference Sources” page on the CRS Web site at [<http://www.crs.gov/reference/general/legislative/legref.shtml>].

Many public and university libraries have designated computer terminals that the public may use to access the Internet. Congressional staff may access the Internet at designated terminals in the CRS reading room and the research centers.

Government Sources

Biographical Directory of the United States Congress, 1774-Present. [<http://bioguide.congress.gov>]. This site provides a searchable database of the more than 11,000 individuals who have served in the House or Senate. The brief biographies can be searched by name or state. Some entries also include a photograph, a bibliography, and information on the location of the Member’s papers.

Clerk of the U.S. House of Representatives. This site [<http://clerk.house.gov>] contains several directories of House committees and Members. Information for Members includes (1) an alphabetical listing, including state and district; (2) a listing by state; (3) a telephone directory; and (4) office mailing addresses. Links are also provided to other directory sources.

Information for House committees includes these listings: (1) Members alphabetically with committee assignments; (2) standing and select committees and subcommittees with the Members assigned to them; and (3) committees and subcommittees with office addresses and telephone numbers. This site also contains links to Member and committee Web sites that are linked from the U.S. House of Representatives Web site, as described below.

GPO Access. See [<http://www.access.gpo.gov/congress>] for access to the Congressional Directory and the Congressional Pictorial Directory; see [<http://www.access.gpo.gov/nara/browse-gm-02.html>] for access to the United States Government Manual. The same information contained in the printed versions of these publications, as described above, can be accessed through these sites.

The online Congressional Pictorial Directory allows users to find photographs by Member’s name or state. The online Congressional Directory and United States Government Manual may be searched by entering a Member’s name, a committee name, or a keyword term. The search retrieves sections of the book wherever that search term appears. One may also browse through the table of contents of each publication.

U.S. House of Representatives Home Page. [<http://www.house.gov>]

This is the official Web site for the U.S. House of Representatives. The “Representative Offices” page provides an alphabetical listing of and links to Member Web sites. The information varies, but it generally includes Washington and district office addresses and telephone numbers, e-mail addresses, biographical information, photographs, and information on Members' legislative work.

The "Committee Offices" page provides a listing of and links to House committees that have Web sites. The information varies, but it generally includes full committee and subcommittee membership lists, office addresses and telephone numbers, and information on the committee's legislative work.

The "House Directory" link leads to the Member and committee directory information provided by the Clerk of the U.S. House of Representatives, described above. This site also contains other information, such as a directory of House leadership and other House organizations, commissions, and task forces.

U.S. Senate Home Page. [<http://www.senate.gov>]

This is the official Web site for the U.S. Senate. The "Senators" page provides links to each Senator's Web site through alphabetical and state listings of Senators' names. The information varies, but generally includes Washington and state office addresses and telephone numbers, e-mail addresses, biographical information, photographs, and information on Members' legislative work. The "Senators" page also links to a list of Senators' e-mail addresses, a page of Senate class membership that indicates when each Senator is up for reelection, a listing of the Senate leadership, and a listing of Senators and their committee assignments.

The "Committees" page links to Senate committee Web sites. It also provides links to lists of membership by committee and subcommittee as well as committee assignments of Senators.

Other Sources

C-SPAN Congress Guide. [<http://www.c-span.org>]

The C-SPAN Congress Guide Web site allows users to search for Members of Congress by committee, alphabetically, by leadership position, by last name, and by zip code. Information includes brief biographies, photographs, Washington and state/district office addresses, telephone and fax numbers, e-mail and Web site addresses, and committee assignments.

Committees can be searched by name. Committee information includes office addresses, telephone and fax numbers, e-mail and Web site addresses, and membership.

CapWeb. [<http://www.capweb.net>]

CapWeb allows users to search for members of the House and Senate by name, state, zip code, political party, class (for Senators), and committee assignment. Information includes Washington office addresses and telephone and fax numbers, links to Members' e-mail addresses and Web sites, photographs, and committee assignments.

Although all the sources included in this report indicate each Member's party affiliation, CapWeb is unique in providing separate lists of Republicans and Democrats.

GovSearch. [http://www.carrollpub.com]

Some of the same information contained in Carroll's Federal Directory is available through Carroll's GovSearch Web site. Users can search for Members of the House and Senate by name or state. Information includes Washington and state/district office addresses and telephone numbers, links to Members' e-mail addresses and Web sites, committee/subcommittee assignments, and key staff. There is no separate listing of committees. A yearly Internet subscription to the entire text of Carroll's Federal Directory, continually updated, starts at $1,200 and varies depending on the number of users.

Congressional Staff Directory. [http://www.cqpress.com]

A Web version of CQ's Congressional Staff Directory is available on the CQ Press Web site. The Web version allows users to search for Members of Congress, committees, staff, and Hill organizations, using names, state/district lists, and keyword searches. Member profiles include brief biographies; photographs; Washington and state/district office address; telephone and fax numbers; e-mail and Web site addresses; committee assignments; staff names, positions, telephone numbers, and e-mail addresses; and Hill organization membership.

Committee profiles list office addresses, telephone and fax numbers, e-mail and Web site addresses, Members, and staff with links to Member profiles and profiles of key staff members. The Web version of the Congressional Staff Directory is available free of charge to subscribers of the print version of the directory.

CQ.com. [http://www.cq.com]

Congressional Quarterly's subscription Web site provides detailed information on Members of Congress and their districts, including biographical profiles, telephone and fax numbers, office addresses, committee assignments, e-mail and Web site addresses, key staff, key votes, and campaign finance figures. CQ.com also provides several rosters listing, among other things, party affiliation, state delegations, demographic characteristics, contact information, and caucus affiliation. The annual subscription price for CQ.com varies on the basis of factors such as the number of users.

The Leadership Library. [http://www.leadershipdirectories.com/]

The Leadership Library is a Web/CD-ROM product that contains the Congressional Yellow Book plus 13 other directories published by Leadership Directories covering federal, state, and local government, nongovernment organizations, and private industry. Users can browse The Leadership Library or search by name, geographic details, job function, legislative responsibility, political affiliation, education, and biographical data. The Web version is updated continually, and the CD-ROM is updated quarterly. The annual subscription price for the Leadership Library starts at $3,178 and varies with the number of users.

Project Vote Smart. [http://www.vote-smart.org/]

This site allows users to search for information on Senators and Representatives by zip code, name, and state. Information includes brief biographies, telephone and fax numbers, office addresses, committee assignments, and Members' e-mail and Web site addresses. Committee information includes descriptions of committee jurisdictions, committee addresses, phone numbers, e-mail and Web site addresses, a listing of Members assigned to each committee and subcommittee.

Roll Call.

[<http://congress.nw.dc.us/rollcall>]

Roll Call's Congressional Directory provides committee and subcommittee rosters, congressional leadership lists, and Capitol Hill telephone numbers. Member information includes a biographical sketch, Washington office addresses and telephone and fax numbers, links to Members' e-mail and Web site addresses, key staff, committee assignments, and links to key votes and Federal Election Commission campaign finance data. The information can be accessed by Member name, state, or zip code.

University of Michigan Documents Center.

[<http://www.lib.umich.edu/libhome/Documents.center/federal.html>]
